IP THE DEMOCRATS DON'T. Ordinarily a party is swift to avail itself of a splendid record and great popularity in selecting a candidate for office. Mr. Nicoza's record as a public prosecutor has never been equalled by any assistant in the District-Attorney's office. His popularity is so well established that if a hundred good citizens, in any part of the city, interested only in securing the best administration of ustice, were asked who should be elected to the coming vacancy, ninety of them would some the brilliant young prosecutor of DENSIER, CROWLEY, JAHREN and SHARP.

Why do the politicians seek to put down instead of put up such a candidate? The people know very well. And if the Demoas don't nominate Nicoll, the people are thely to take a hand in running their own

This is a good year for a People's movement. There is independence in the air.

THE WEED OF MORE SCHOOLS. sands of children are barred out of the schools in this city because of lack of dations.

This is an inexcusable state of affairs. The inevitable increase in the number of children of school age should have been anticipated and provided for by a Board of Education sonably wide awake. As this was not done more school room should be secured emediately.

New York cannot afford to be niggardly or neglectful in the education of its children. Let there be a speedy end to the paradox of inpulsory education and a lack of school-

PLENTY OF WORK TO DO.

The Grand Jury now in session seems dis posed to put its shoulder to the wheel in the mation of municipal abuses. It calls for the names of the street obstructers, and proposes to test the efficacy of a few indict-

The Grand Jury need have no idle moments if it is zealous in the cause of reform. The official BUDDENSIERS still endanger humen life. The street rippers are yet rampent. The wires are yet overhead. The Manhattan road is illegally building little vilages in mid-air. The nauseating nuisances by the water front continue. There is hardly a department in the municipal government that does not need overhauling.

One Grand Jury cannot do all the work that is needed, but a substantial beginning at least can be made.

STILL "IN POLITICS."

Ex-Alderman CLEARY, who escaped conviction for boodling, presented himself at the door of the County Democracy's Convention last night. He was persuaded by his friends not to enter, though he has not been expelled nor has he resigned from that If Boss Powen is permitted to have his way in the County Democracy there will be no longer any reason why CLEARY and the rest of the old Aldermanie "combine" should not resume their places in politics. The knifing of NICOLL would mean the rehabilitation of the boodlers.

LEVEL-BEADED CHIEF ARTHUR.

The Grand Chief of the Locomotive Engimeers carries a level head on his shoulders, check-full of good sense.

His ideas are justified by their prevalencehis system by its success. The Order has 25,-2000 members, and it manages the affairs of the Locomotive Engineers in a manner to secure justice without strikes, and to promote the welfare of the Brotherhood in other

The motto of the Order is: "Sobriety, truth, justice and morality." Mr. ARTHUR adds to this, this personal injunction to the mbers: "Be temperate and industrious; actise economy; save your earnings; make the best use possible of your time and tal-

THE POWER OF AN IDEA.

The popular interest and enthusiasm awakened by GLADSTONE's vigorous fight for Home Rule illustrates the power of an idea in politics. The eyes of the world are fixed upon the arena where a principle of human liberty and justice is the issue.

How cheap, paltry and mean in contrast is the scramble of hungry politicians for the flesh-pots of office! We have no dearth of vital questions in this country, but a lack of leaders to realize their significance.

Good government and the rights of the people are menaced by monopoly, plutocracy and corruption. Can GLADSTONE'S example inspire no leaders here?

SURPLUS AND DEFICIT.

It appears to be the settled policy of the Republican leaders to belittle the question of the surplus.

"It is only $1.66 per head," says Senator EVARTS. "It is easier to manage a surplus than a deficit," says a candidate on the State ticket.

This is not the right way to meet the question of over-taxation to the extent of $100,000,000 a year, which has now continued for eight years. "Unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation," and unjust taxation is tyranny.

A surplus in the Treasury causes a deficit in the pockets of the taxpayers. The superfluous war taxes should be reduced, and reduced "straightway."

INSPECT THE INSPECTORS.

The Building Bureau is apparently quite as shaky and unreliable as the rickety structures it has neglected to condemn.

Inspector Marris, who failed to properly eport the dangerous condition of the Harem school-house, has been dismissed and has been put under bonds to appear before the Coroner's jury. Three other dismissals and one resignation from the Bureau abruptly follow.

The evidence goes to show that bribery as well as negligence has undermined the efficiency of the Bureau. There is a necessity for a searching investigation.

Clear out the Building Bureau.

NO SUCH LUCK.

The notion that Attorney-General GARLAND is likely to resign from the Cabinet because of a difference of opinion with Secretary BAYARD over international questions growing out of the fisheries dispute, is too absurd. For two years and more Mr. Garland has stuck in his place like a burr in wool, in the face of a difference of opinion with the whole American people as to the propriety of a Minister of Justice dabbling in a speculative job from which he could make money only by reason of his official position.

The Pan-Electric statesman is not likely to resign. Nothing less than a dynamite grand bounce will move him.

SOME VERY SURE THINGS.

A Democratic boss, in the spirit of apology for the reluctance of the machines to nominate NICOLL, says: "There's nothing sure in politics."

This hoary fallacy needs to be nailed on the spot.

Nothing can be more sure than the overthrow of any political organization that ventures to ally itself with boodlers, to countenance corruption, to shield criminals, to be heedless of the people's will and recreant to the people's interests.

Nothing can be more certain than that Right is Might in politics; that fearless fidelity to public duty is the shrewdest tactics.

To be specific, NICOLL to-day personifie the issue between the people and the boodlers. Nothing can be more inevitable than the overwhelming defeat of the organization that " knifes" him.

It is very amiable in Secretary BAYARD to apologize to Canada because his orders for the release of poaching Canadian sealers were not promptly obeyed. But the Yankee skippers who have been bullied and harried in Canadian ports think that there should be some apologies from the other side. Does not the backbone of the State Department need a little ramrod support?

There will be no red rags in future parades of the Knights of Labor. The General Assembly voted that nothing shall be carried except national or State colors. The Stars and Stripes are good enough, and not a bit too good, for American workingmen. Those who hoist the red flag of anarchy should themselves be hoisted.

SHARP's counsel complained to the Court of Appeals that the old briber is still "languishing in jail." Why don't they stop their stays and permit him to receive proper care in the airy hospital room at Sing Sing?

How do the voters of New York relish the spectacle of a Police Justice neglecting hisduties to "knife" a faithful public servant because of his success in bringing rogues to punishment?

"MILLER States the Issue," is the heading given in a Republican organ to one of the ex-Senator's perfunctory stump speeches. The issue is no longer MILLER, that's certain.

New York is to have two circuses all winter, and a special one on the 8th of November. The local political bosses will not relish the latter performance.

In miscalling the President a "ruler," Orator GRADY merited the rain that dampened the spirits of Atlanta vesterday.

ONLY STATE AND NATIONAL COLORS MAY

BE CARRIED IN THEIR PARADES. Chicago Delegates Disgruntled at the Conservatism of Powderly and Administration Men in the Minneapolis Convention-Business Closed Up With a Rush-Prospect of Trouble With Steel Workers.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD] MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 20 .- As was predicted in dispatches to THE EVENING WORLD yesterday, the General Assembly of the Knights of Labor closed its work with a rush and the delegates left for home last night. Business was hurried through under heavy pressure and a great deal of important legislation was hastily enacted, which, under other circumstances, would have required perhaps a week to dispose of. It was decided to meet next year in November at Indianapolis. The International Cigarmakers, who were expelled from the Knights by decree of the Richmond session of the General Assembly were invited to return to the order. The compulsory feature of the co-operative system was removed at the desire of the trade assemblies, and the constitution was changed that the General Executive Board can not hereafter interfere with strikers unless called upon to do so. Western assemblies made a vigorous effort to have wiped out the temperance restrictions contained in the constitution, but they were defeated by a vote of 104 to 49.

With the exception of one or two little rows over the report of the Finance Commit-tee the closing hours of the session were har-monious. After all is done serene peace is not restored between the warring mem-bers of the General Executive Board and their adherents, and sexpeak can be but still the bers of the General Executive Board and their adherents, and scarcely can be, but still the members of the order at large may congratulate themselves that the grave crisis which was reached on Sunday has been passed in safety, and that the order may take a new lease of life and usefulness.

In an interview here, just after adjournment. Mr. Powderly said that there

In an interview here, just after adjournment, Mr. Powderly said that there has never been an important difference between the Knights of Labor and the trades unions. "The one body," he said, "seeks to regulate all matters of general import and matters which belong to the general welfare of all trades. It acts as a guardian of the interests of all workingmen wherein these interests can or may come in contact or in conflict with extraneous enmity or contravention. We do not purpose or propose to infringe upon the rights of each and every trade to act as it thinks best for the stability of its members."

Naturally, many delegates are disgusted at the results of the Convention. Some of the Chicago men are sore because opposition was not formally expressed to hanging the Anarchites. The Anarchites are dispussed as lease. Chicago men are sore because opposition was not formally expressed to hanging the Anarchists. The Anarchists are displeased, also, by a vote that Knights shall carry nothing but State and national colors on parade. No more red flags in their processions. A petition is in circulation here this morning, headed by Socialist George A. Schilling, asking the delegates to request that the Chicago Anarchists' sentence be commuted. The administration delegates are as a rule well satisfied. They admit that the continuation of Barry and Bailey on the Executive Board will be a thorn in the sides of the general officers. The abolition of the "assistance fund" to aid strikes, and which it really encouraged, is regarded as the most important legislation of the session. It places the legislation of the session. It places the order squarely in opposition to strikes wher-ever it is possible to avoid them.

Steel Workers Preparing for Trouble.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] PITTSBURG, Oct. 20 .- There is a prospect of rouble between the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers and the Knights. The officers of the Amalgamated have just completed the foundation of have just completed the foundation of a lodge among the workmen at the Spang Iron and Steel Works. The men were astonished when told that those belonging to the Knights of Labor also must renounce their alliance to the Knights of Labor by April 1. The Amalgamated people are making efforts to bring in all the 5,000 employees of the steel works in this city. President Weihe will go East to head off the Knights in that direction and later on the Western mills will be taken care of. It promises to be a formidable fight.

The Philadelphia Shoemakers' Lockout.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—The shoe hands are still idle on the streets, and the shops are closed. When the order to quit work was officially read out in the different shops the manufacturers immediately ordered their manufacturers immediately ordered their hands to pack up their tools, call at the office to get their pay and leave. This meant that the situation was not looked upon by the manufacturers as a strike, but a discharge. The manufacturers say that any overtures for compromise must come from the men. The hands are hopeful that everything will be settled by the reorganization of the joint Board of Arbitration within a few days, and that they will be ordered to return to work and let the new Board settle the differences between the benchmen and their employers.

LAST NIGHT'S CONVENTION.

Police Justice Maurice J. Power looked Ex-Mayor Edward Cooper sat in the front

The delegates from the Seventh District were the best-looking. Tom Costigan and his 300 pounds of flesh were received with cheers.

Col, Fellows in his speech steered clear of the District-Attorneyship question. The bosses tried to make the reporters believe it was another Thomas Cleary The delegates looked at each other when the name of Thomas Cleary, the boodler, was Deputy Collector John A Mason sat on the platform, while Custom-House Paymaster Jobes sat next to Tim Campbell.

There were fully fifteen hundred delegates present. Each leader was surrounded by his lieutenants and faithful followers. When the Tammany Hall Committee ap-eared with the olive elled for glory, union and the offices. A smart newsboy gathered a harvest of pennies by entering the Convention and yelling "Extra Evening World, latest sport-ing news."

"I have seen the time," said a delegate from the Sixteenth District, "when we would have received a Tammany Hall com-mittee with clubs." Eighteen ex-Aldermen, sixteen ex-Assemblymen and fourteen ex-Senators were seen in the body of the hall. Nearly all of them were smoking a cigar. It made Police Capt. McCullagh think of other days when he saw ex-Superintendent James J. Kelso hand up the credentials from the Twenty-first District.

The Thomas Cleary who appeared on the roll of delegates was the genuine ex-Alderman Thomas Cleary. He did not enter the hall, but he was seen on the corner of Third avenue and Fighth street. avenue and Eighth street, The convention adjourned as soon as

The convention adjourned as about as the Conference Committee was appointed. The various districts named their respective leaders. The delegates then quietly withdrew to the sidewalks, where they gathered in groups to talk over the situation and discuss the probable action of the leaders.

Death of Justice Walbridge. [SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]
WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 20.—Justice Walbridge, of Manitoba, died this morning.

DEADHEADS ALL HIS FOES.

All Sorts of Schemes to Get Past Manage

Col. John A. McCaull's brisk little business manager, B. D. Stevens, is one of the nost inveterate foes that the would-be deadheads can encounter. He is withal so suave, smiling, serenely affable, and cordially jocose, that he rarely makes an enemy of anybody for more than ten minutes. Standing beside him for half an hour one night, dur-ing the production of "Bellman" at Wal-lack's, a great deal of instruction on the deadhead subject could be gleaned. "Good evening, Stevens," says a glib young man with a large smile, "good house to-night?"

Excellent, couldn't be better."

"I thought of writing some new verses for De Wolf Hopper's song. Got an original idea or two to dispose of. Guess I'll just step in to catch the rhythm—you under-stand?"

step in to catch the rhythm—you understand?"

"Yes," says Stevens, funereal and with despondency, "I understand. I daren't let you pass, though. McCaull is strict. Personally, you know"—

"Oh, don't mention it"—with an effort. "Some other time. Not at all anxious, you know. Fine weather we're having. Ta! Ta!"

Ten minutes later Stevens is beating time with his little feet to the march playing in side, which can be distinctly heard outside. A dusty-looking individual approaches and hails Stevens. "Say, old man, I suppose you extend the courtesies of the profession. I'm on the road with Miss Snooks—leading juvenile, you know. Play at Redbank, N.J., to-morrow night, so I shan't get another chance to see this show."

"No," says Stevens, precisely; "awfully sorry, old fellow, but the rules of the house, you know"— you know"——

"What! you don't recognize the perfesh?"

"What! you don't recognize the perfesh?" irately.

"I'm afraid not."

"Oh, very well, very well. Tell McCaull that if he ever attempts to put his nose in our show he shall be kicked out unless he buys his ticket. It's an outrage. Nothing personal, Stevens, you understand. Guess I may as well be going.

Five minutes after. A weary youth climbs gingerly up the steps and salutes Stevens deferentially. "My cousin," he says, "is inside. He has an orchestra seat. I've got to see him on most important business. If you'll just let me, I'll be out in five minutes."

"Act will be over then," says Stevens, taking up an evening paper and looking at the death notices as though he half hoped to read his own there.

'Oh, I can't wait, I really can't," says the youth.

"You must, young man, unless you want to pay for an admission."

"I'll be hanged first. This is heartless. This is a disgrace. I won't wait. I won't see my cousin. If anything happens, you—remember this—shall be responsible for the

Then the rush of people indicates that the act is over, and Stevens, passing a handker-chief over his prespiring brow, takes a short respirate.

The Press Abounds with Praise for the Even ing World's Enterprise. [From the Atlantic (N. J.) Times.]

The greatest fournalistic hit of the season is the New York EVENING WORLD, which started off with an edition of 111,000. In the matter of hits THE WORLD is doing a trip-hammer business.

(From the Dubucue Heraid, 1
The New York World has commenced the pubcation of an evening edition, which is a bright, readable, six-page paper. THE WORLD has had much success under its present management, and is all around a great paper.

Future Great." [Philadelphia Ledger, New York Correspondence.]
THE EVENING WORLD is no longer a bantling, but a full-grown giant, with a declared circulation of upwards of 115,000, and this, too, within five days after it was born. It is doubtful if anything approaching this has ever before been achieved in New York journalism-and yet the end is not, Editor Pulitzer is aiming at a round 200,000, and nobody will doubt, in view of his past achievements in this kind of thing, that he is a good marksman.

(From the Saginaw (Mich.) Courier.) The evening newspaper field in New York is likely to be fully occupied. Some months ago the Evening Sun appeared on the horizon, and, so far as known, has achieved a marked success. This induced Mr. Pulitzer to take a hand in and the EVENING WORLD was born on Monday. It is a handsome paper, bright and newsy, and its mission is " to expose all fraud and sham, to fight all public evils and abuses and to serve and battle for the people with earnest sincerity." The morning WORLD is the phenomenal success of the age, and it is announced that the same heart which has shaped its sympathies, the same principles which have guided its course, will control THE EVENING WORLD. It sells at one cent a copy and its success is assured.

Dr. William G. Wright, of 227 East Thirtieth street, was accused in the Jefferson Market Court this morning of having tried to shoot Paul Jardine, of 124 East Sixteenth

"Did you not strike me first?"

"No. I struck you and knocked you down when I saw that you were going to shoot me."
Dr. Wright seemed discouraged at this answer and was committed in default of $3,000 bail for trial.

ABLE TO CARE FOR HERSELF.

A Girl Strikes an Insolent Young Man Who Annoyed Her.

Passengers on the Sixth avenue elevated railroad were treated to an exciting scene yesterday evening. A young woman, a workinggirl going home from a downtown manufactory, was the object of sundry attentions from two young men on the train. They were apparently ungrateful to the slender. were apparently ungrateful to the alender, modest creature, who was visibly annoyed. Suddenly, one of the fellows made a remark to the girl which passed the broader line between chaff and insult. Her eye flashed, her nostrils dilated, and turning quickly on the man, she struck out straight from the shoulder. It was not a John L. Sullivan blow, but the young man caught all there was of it square in the face.

The conductor interfered and called for explanation.

The cur insulted me," said the girl, her bosom heaving quickly. The fellow, despite bosom heaving quickly. The fellow, despite his protestation, was hustled off at the next

Why didn't you speak to the conductor

"Why didn't you speak to the conductor about the fellow if he annoyed you?" said a lady who had entered the car just in time to take in the whole scene.

"Oh, we poor girls have to look out for ourselves." said the girl a little bitterly. "I am only sorry I bruised my hand so, for I have to work for my living with it."

She put the swollen knuckle of her right hand to her mouth and tried to bring down the swelling. The sympathy of the car was with the girl, and there was a feeling that she could look out for herself.

HARRY HILL'S NEW SCHEME.

The Police Say He Can't Have a License Even if He has Become a Company.

Harry Hill dies hard, and still in his old age, sighs for the excitement of an all-night dance hall. Since his retirement from business on Oct. . 8 on account of Supt. Murray's vigilance, Harry's friends have been on the lookout for a legal method of circumventing the police, and the incorporation of "The Houston Amusement Com-pany" is the result.

While Harry does not figure among the incorporators, it is given out that he is the father of the scheme and will reap much greater benefit than from the simple relation of landlord. To-day an application will be made for an excise license, and later Mayor Hewitt will be asked to issue a musical Hewitt will be asked to issue a musical permit.

The police are watching the Hill establishment closely, and should it be opened for business Inspector Williams will keep a policeman there during hours of business to see that the law is not violated. Supt. Murray says that under no circumstances will be permit one of the suppressed dives to come and Inspector Steers says. "Harry re-open, and Inspector Steers says: "Harry Hill had better pull down his big eagle, take in his clock and retire from business. The Excise Board will not dare issue a license to this historic dive, and the members are on record as having refused one by unanimous

THE FIRST NAIL HAS BEEN DRIVEN. Despendent Baltimore and Ohio Employee

Watch the Western Union Invaders. "The first nail has been driven," sorrow fully exclaimed a pretty lady operator at the Baltimore and Ohio Telegraph Company yesterday when the Western Union linemen stepped in to remove part of the big switch board to 195 Broadway. As the Western Union workmen completed their work and were bearing away on their shoulders in triumph the vital part of the Baltimore and Ohio telegraph machinery, the faces of the operators and clerks told plainly how the consolidation affected them. To many it meant that they would soon have to look elsewhere for their bread and butter, and any telegrapher who has tried to get employment in New York in the fall or winter knows what that means. The market is overstocked and business decreases daily until the height of the dull season is reached

The Broadway and Canal street omce probably be kept open for some months, the Western Union will exercise direct trol, and the old operators will be slowly

ACTORS' STORIES OF UPSETS

THEATRICAL COMPANIES WHICH FOUND BUSINESS POOR.

Harry C. Jarrett's "Lost-in-the-Snow ! Troupe Disbanded-" Deacon Bredie Expected to Come Marching Home-"The Still Alarm" Temporarily Silenced-

Frank Carlyle Wanted in Two Places

T PRESENT, the number of actors out of employment, which has been unusually has been unusually large this season, has been swelled by several theatrical "casualties," news of which has just reached this city. Harry C. city. Harry C. Janrett, formerly of Jar.
rett & Palmer, who some two months age came from England was a strong melodrama, the title of which was "Lost in the Snow," telegraphed yesterday that his company had disbanded, owing to lack of business. He had played on the road for only some seven weeks.

It was rumored yesterday that the company playing "Deacon Brodie" would soon come marching home. This company includes Mr. Henley and Miss Annie Rohe, both known to Wallackian audiences, and a strong cast of English players, who came over to appear in the piece. "Deacon Brodie" is an English play, and was tried last winter at a matinée at Wallack's. A number of theatri. cal speculators and leading managers were present. Mr. Henley, the owner of the play, magnanimously offered it to these managers. but they refused it on any terms. Henley, in spite of this ominous state of things, resolved to take the play out himself.

The "Still Alarm" company has been laying up " for the last two weeks, unable to secure dates. People don't seem to be particularly anxious to see the paraphernalis of an engine-house, or to witness the preparations made to extinguish a fire.

After his engagement in Philadelphila, Henry E. Dixey makes a quick jump to San Francisco, where he plays during the Thankagiving holidays at the Baldwin Theatre. He will then come eastward. It is more than probable that towards the end of the present season he will produce "Faust" at the Bijou Opera-House. His "Faust" will of course be a a burleaque of Irving's impersonation. He will have an opportunity of seeing the English tragedian very shortly, though Mr. Dixey saw Mr. Irving's version of "Faust" at the Lyceum Theatre, London.

It is likely that Harry Miner will obtain an injunction to restrain Frank Carlyle from appearing in the "Rudolphe" company at the Fourteenth Street Theatre on Monday night, Carlyle is playing the leading part in Mr. Miner's "Allan Dare" company, which does not close its season until the following Saturday night. Mr. Miner wants Carlyle to remain until then. Carlyle feels he has a grievance. He declares that he refused an excellent offer from Mrs. Langtry a few weeks ago, because he was promised by some one of the "Allan Dare" management that his engagement with that company should continue throughout the season. He now declines to let the opportunity of securing a New York engagement offered by the "Rudolphe" company go by. Whispers of Mr. Miner's injunction came yesterday (stage whispers, they were) from members of Mr. Miner's company. The Fourteenth Street Theatre people, should the attempt he made to restrain Carlyle, will give bonds for him.

The members of the "Allan Dare" com-pany have mostly all been engaged, so that the closing of their season on Saturday is robbed of its sting. This fact shows, that although there are any number of actors dis-engaged, those who have made a favorable impression in New York—as was the case with most of the "Allan Dare" people—are always preferred by managers. Henry E. Abbey will probably rely entirely # and not attempt any more new plays. The failure of "The Mouse Trap" has shown him that there is a great risk involved in the production of new plays, when his large and excellent company will be favorably received in some standard work.
